3. Children Success Program

As an experienced professional, Janice Cohen is well aware that small children between the ages of 2 and 9 have very distinctive and specific to their group nutrition-related problems. They are mainly caused by outside influences (peers, media, society, etc.) and the inability of the child to make the right nutrition choices. Problems find their actual expression in refusals to intake proper food like vegetables, throwing away lunches or trading them for lower-quality food, and many other forms which almost every parent has encountered. That is why we designed our special Children Success Program to tackle these issues and to teach small children how to make successful nutrition decisions, make sure they have a positive body image and confidence to bring them into young adulthood. The program includes two children aged between 2 and 9 years, siblings or not, and consists of:

- One initial visit for each child – duration of 60 minutes per patient. A special pediatric methodology is applied when examining each child and determining the exact individual problems and needs.
- One follow-up visit for each child – duration of 30 minutes per patient.
- Two combined follow-up visits for both children – duration of 30 minutes each (15 minutes per child per combined visit).
